Clear Literature Display Holders, Racks And Stands

A resilient acrylic brochure holder, with multiple or single pockets, offers an efficient solution to display advertising and marketing material.

A top or front-loading plastic holder is often constructed to accept literature such as magazines, inserts, memos, leaflets, or similar such stationery measuring up to 9-inches in width and 11-inches in height. A larger-sized display case often features an extra pocket to hold a business card or nametag.

A plastic or acrylic leaflet holder is designed to either rest on a countertop or mount to a wall, often coming pre-drilled to facilitate ease in attaching to an empty wall space. A display rack, with wall-mountable options, is ideal in such places as tourist centers, hotel lobbies or health centers.

Some of the common types of counter top and wall mountable leaflet holders include the Trifold at 4" in width, the Half Page at 4" in width, and the Full Page at 9" in width.

Rubbermaid, Innovative Plastics, and Deflect-O all construct a selection of single and multi-tiered display racks, with a solid build in a lightweight and clear plastic for long-term protection. Display stands in a resilient or extra thick plastic offer a more dependable design for long-term use.

In addition to the resilient counter top and wall-mountable holders, a floor-standing unit, with multi-tiered racks, and pedestal base is perfect to accept an assortment of magazines, brochures, or pamphlets in its 4 to 12-pockets.

Sign holders, table tents, ad frames, business card holders, suggestion boxes and more all appear in the collection to display pieces to showcase literature a company has to offer. In addition to the plastic constructed holders, these also appear in wire, wooden, metal, and cardboard, with a choice of pocket sizes, and an option to use inside or outside.

Whether it is to display leaflets, brochures, nametags or business cards, a compact literature holder offers a stylish stand for guests or customers to find what is on offer with ease.
