Fragrant Wood Chess Boards

Wood is a material being using from time immemorial for construction and designing. It comes handy at every stage of life, be it toys for a little one or coffin for the dead. Wooden toys are best for children as they are durable and attractive. Besides, there are several games where wood is used extensively and board games are one among them. Chess is one board game where use of wood is considered a pride. It is said that chess is a game of the brain and it requires a lot of concentration. Wooden chess sets are the best when it comes to beauty and elegance as every little detail has to be taken care of while carving them.

For the fans of this brilliant board games , investing in a chessboard made of quality wood is worth each penny. Getting a custom chessboard hand made by a skilled carpenter is worth it. There is a lot effort to carve each piece of chess out of wood because of tiny details . Wooden chess sets are not about durability only they are a class above rest and looks more beautiful and elegant. It is said that wood chess sets have been a part of this board game since its early stages and has seen all the stages of evolution of the board game we call chess.

The two famous types of woods used to make chess sets are rosewood and walnut , though people also prefer walnut chess boards. Rosewood is the most widely used and most famous wood for making chess sets. Its also the most difficult to carve and only the best craftsman can make a chess set out of rosewood. Apart from available in natural color with dark streaks interlocked, chess sets made of rosewood are available in a variety of shades from rose to dark brown. Boxwood's color is lighter the rosewood and has a shade of light brown.

Now, even boxwood is used in making chess sets as they are not as expensive as rosewood, but they do look elegant because of their glossy finish. The shades are lighter in boxwood than rosewood, giving it a prettier look of light brown. The price suits the pocket but there is no compromising in quality when boxwood is used. Further, if someone does not want to invest much, walnut chess boards suit the pocket and they look decent, too. They are used in various tournaments as they do compete with the higher counterparts.

Chess sets serve as a wonderful gift to chess fans. A chess lover would love a chess board as a gift and if it comes from someone special, the occasion becomes more memorable. With time it has become easier buying this gift with online shopping becoming so popular.
