Different Things You Should Consider When Purchasing Travel Coffee Mugs

Many people are in the market for travel coffee mugs but are not sure how to purchase one that they will be truly happy with. Unsuitable mugs tend to linger around in cupboards while their buyers search for the right ones. The problem is that unless they know what they do and do not like, they may end up buying the same models in different colors and find those inferior or unsuitable as well.

There are many different materials you can choose from for travel mugs. They range from plastic, which can give off harmful chemicals if heated, to glass, metal and stoneware. There are also some beautiful ceramic mugs on the market as well that are stylish as well as functional. It is really a matter of personal preference and how much of a beating you expect your travel mug to take. You should think about the size of mug you will purchase. Too small, and you will need frequent refills. Too large and you run the risk of beverages cooling down too much before you have the chance to drink them.

Of course, even a large mug can keep drinks very hot if they are insulated properly. Some of the best travel mugs have double walled construction to provide the necessary insulation. There is a pocket of air between the inner and outer walls and this is what keeps the drinks from cooling off too quickly. However, not all mugs can be put in the dishwasher without ruining the insulating qualities.

The next thing you want to make sure is that your travel mug is easy to clean. The lid should be easy to remove and the wider the opening is the easier it will be to clean the interior. If you want to clean your travel mug in a dishwasher you need to make sure that it is dishwasher safe so that cleaning it that way does not damage the insulation.

You want to pay attention to the lid that goes with the mug. Do you like the way it opens and closes? Some rotate and others have a slide that opens and closes the mug. Can you open it one handed? If not, you may find it awkward and hard to deal with if you have your hands full. You also want to make sure that it is as drip proof as possible especially if you will be using the mug around important papers or expensive electronic equipment.

Traveling with your mug is much easier if you make sure that your mug will fit in a cup holder. This is important if the mug will be used in a car, since a cup that does not fit the holder will be useless much of the time. You may need to save the wide bottomed mugs for the office and for home since very few cars have a cup holder that can accommodate them.

There are other unique travel mugs that you can use to transport hot beverages. There is the standard thermos, which many people like because it can hold quite a bit of liquid and keep it warm for quite some time. One of the more interesting products on the market is the French press. This is a coffee mug with a specialized lid that allows you to brew coffee or tea right in the mug. The mesh press pushes down and strains the loose leaf tea or the coffee grounds which can result in a superior hot beverage that is fresh and truly gourmet.

Your morning travel may seem bleak but using a travel mug can take the edge off of a long ride in to the office. By choosing carefully you can find the one that suits your needs and your budget and keep you happily caffeinated all day long.
