Malvern Photography - 4 Great Camera Tips For Enhanced Digital Photos!!

Just bought a new camera ?? And very excited to start taking photos with your new gadget??

But Alas, why does the picture not look as good as you wanted to !! No need to worry, stay tuned below for 4 new tricks to taking more interesting and memorable photos.

Trick #1 - Experiment with the different camera exposure settings with Malvern Photography

You can have pictures looking more brilliant with 0.5 to 2 stops underexposed in bright surroundings, and scenes appearing more clear with some overexposure. You can create pictures which can bring different mods from people viewing it just by simple tuning of the exposure level.. Thats why the quote "A Picture Says A Thousand Words" is very true indeed ! For newbies, try out bracketing (i.e: Take the same photos with different exposure levels) and take your favorite pick from them.

Trick #2 - Bring out some creative blur in photos

By introducing some well-planned blur in photos, you can bring across certain important features, while using the rest as good complement, providing an overall nice touch. This can be done in 2 basic types.

First type is depth-of-field blur. Varying the lens aperture between 0.4 to 1.4 can create a lovely, soft background blur which bring sharp focus to the subject in the foreground.

Second type is movement blur. Done by setting the camera exposure on shutter priority, and keep it slow so as to capture interesting streaks as the subject moves in front of the camera.

Trick #3 - Create something out of nothing !!

What does this mean? This exercise encourages you to take a step back and contemplate on how you can take wonderful pictures with things you already encountered on a daily basis.

One approach is to create your shot around the common elements around you such as lines, space and patterns. This can mean anything from the roads to the bridges, the trees, the railings, etc.. With this, you start to see more possibilities and room for creativity.

Trick #4 - Take Unique Photos with Malvern Photography.

Try to avoid taking photos from already popular places where everyone else has taken before, it will not be fresh, and the thrill is also much diminished. Try out new intense photography (for example: underwater photography), or it could be as easy as shooting through thick glasses for that extra 3D feel, or shooting reflections of objects in water or other reflective objects.
