The Important Basic Safety Tips For Window Cleaners To Work In A Safe Way

Our buildings look great with the help of the window cleaners that help get them this way. It can be a dangerous business in some cases as falls occur and things drop. So if you are a small business owner there are basic safety tips for window cleaners that you should follow to ensure not only your safety but the safety of others around the building or home you are cleaning.

Safety Tip #1: If you are considering a window cleaning business you will want to decide if you are going to clean windows for residential or commercial. There are different safety issues for both. Once you have chosen which direction you want to go then you can specialize in getting the equipment that is necessary for each type of location.

Safety Tip #2: The safest thing you can do is to have the proper insurance that covers yourself, your employees if you have them and the surroundings where you are working. This is true for whatever type of business you own. Even if you are a one person window business only cleaning on the weekend you will still need insurance. Some businesses will not hire you without proof of you being self insured.

Safety Tip #3: Proper ladder equipment is necessary for the window cleaning business. An extension ladder is vital for most window cleaning businesses if you are going to be off the ground. If you are a one person business the ladder needs to be sturdy and dependable without needing a spotter. Other equipment is vital for cleaning high rise buildings.

Safety Tip #4: How you handle the materials you are washing the windows with is important. If you are using water or chemicals it can be dangerous to people below you. You also need proper protection if you use some chemicals. Be prepared and start in your comfort zone before you stretch yourself to new heights.

Safety Tip #5: It may not seem like a safety tip but communication is vital when you are cleaning windows. You will need a device that enables you to talk to your team or call out for help if you need to when you are working alone. Have a sturdy push to talk phone and enable it so you can use only one hand if you need to.

There are other basic safety tips for window cleaners that should be considered but these are the top five. You will need to be prepared for anything. Know, for example, that if you have a windy day and you work on a high rise that it is not worth risking your life to get a job done. Use common sense and know that in bad weather you will take a day off.
