Where Is The Best Place To Position Your Signage?

There is an old proverb that means: What if you gave a birthday bash and no one attended it? The same thing could be said about placing signage:. What if you make the most stunning signage in the world and no one ever saw it?

Selecting the best site for your signage is one of the difficulties faced, while positioning a signage. Previously, a signage screen used to be positioned at the top or at the corners of buildings; but it was quickly revealed that unless the signage is positioned at an eye level and openly facing its targeted audience, it might frequently be missed out.

Usually the signage is placed on the top of the buildings in busy metropolitan cities and the best example could be of Times Square New York where there are hundreds of signages which make that area famous and colourful, it has also become a must visit spot for tourists and they never miss visiting it.

Your target viewers can be anywhere and your loyal client can be anyone. So, your signage must not be restricted to a single area only, it should be all over the place. Keep in mind that the signage is your best tool, while searching for consumers and clients.

But where precisely should you position your signage? Do you want to publicize an event? If you want the community to take part in your event, related to the forthcoming promotional offers or contests, hang or post your signage in a site where they could easily be located.

Besides, it should be noted that signage should be displayed at such places where the general public has free access as the main purpose behind displaying these signs and billboards is to increase sales of the relevant good or service. Public parks are another extremely good place for advertisements and displaying signages, as people usually like to spend their leisure time in parks to relax.

For advertising purposes, signage should be placed at extreme heights such as walls of buildings and sky scrapers. They can be placed with many spot lights on them, but their height will determine their visibility for everybody, be they motorists or pedestrians. The height however, must not be too high because of the fluctuating climatic conditions of the area; the signage is often dangerous and may cause an accident.

Thus, the placement of all kinds of signage is very important if you or the government wants the public to take notice of the signs.
