Home Business - Using EBooks For Marketing

The viral effects of eBooks can take your home business to the next level. In this article, I am going to show you exactly why you need to start utilizing eBooks to promote your home business if you are not doing so already.

The great thing about eBooks, is that they are digital. This means that they do not need to be printed off, and can be delivered electronically. In fact, if you are someone who has written many articles in the past, perhaps as part of your article marketing strategy, you can actually compile some of those articles, and create an eBook. However, if you are not a very astute writer, then you have the option of purchasing an eBook with private label rights, and formatting it to suit your needs.

Have you ever heard the saying, "The money is in the list?" Essentially, whenever someone says this, they are referring to an email marketing list. The most successful Internet marketers in the world have built their email marketing list over the years. Some have lists into the hundreds of thousands. The only thing is, how do you get someone to join your list. Well, one option is to offer them something of value. That something of value can be a free eBook. Realize that the most sought after product on the Internet is information. Thus, if all someone has to do is provide their email address to receive the information which they seek, then I am fairly certain that they will provide you with their email address. The key is making sure that your eBook covers topics which are highly relevant to your website, and more specifically, your niche market.

I cannot stress the importance of making sure that your eBook is focused on niche specific topics. The truth is that this ties directly into niche marketing. In order to experience optimum success with any home business, you must determine which segment of the market will be most interested in what you have to offer. Thus, in order for your eBook to provide a viable marketing method, it must be highly relevant to the subject matter of your home business, and provide value to the reader. A well-written, informative eBook will place you in a position of authority in your industry. If your eBook serves to educate a large number of individuals in your target market, you will become renowned as an expert in your field, to whom others will look for advice. Once this is the case, people will act upon your recommendations to purchase a product or service. We see this sort of thing all of the time. Just look at "Consumer Reports".

I am not sure how familiar you are with the concept of viral marketing, and for that reason, I will explain. I apologize to those of you who already fully understand the concept.

Have you ever received an email of a funny video or a joke which has been forwarded to a string of people? I am sure that most people have. Have you ever received that same email from more than one person within a two week period? Well, if you have, it is because that email went viral. Viral marketing involves using pre-existing social networks to increase brand awareness. Thus, if one person downloads your eBook, then sends it to two other people, who in turn send it to two more people, who in turn do the same, your eBook has experienced the effects of viral marketing. If you are having difficulty grasping this concept. Just think of the way in which Facebook works. One friend has another friend, who is on the list of another friend, and therefore can request to be added by that friend. Thus, if your eBook launches to the viral stage, you cannot even predict how much exposure this will provide for your home business.

Moreover, I highly recommend that each and every home business owner who engages in eBook marketing get the most out of their eBooks by submitting them to shareware websites. In order to do this, you will first need to submit your eBook to a PAD (Portable Application Description) file. Thereafter, you can add your eBook to shareware websites, and gain greater exposure for your home business.
