Can you trust web hosting comparison sites? I really do not know. When you are looking for quality web hosting service, though, you would do well to look into a good web host via a research guide that can help you find the best one. You may also find some real independent reviews helpful when looking for a web host. Called the "Top Ten Web Hosting" sites for comparing generally, below follow a list of the Best 5 web hosting review, rating, and comparison sites:

- WebHostingTalk.com

This is the best hosting review site because you can gain reliable and timely review about how to choose better service. The site includes reviews of webhosting companies, suggestions and discussion forums on hosting related topics, and also offers guidance on server hosting, ecommerce platforms, business hosting, service provider ratings and relevant news items.

There are independent reviews of popular web hosting providers that you can take advantage of, and it will not even cost you $10 each month. All hosting plans in these reviews include at least a free domain name and a 30 day money back guarantee.

This is a hosting industry review site that provides us professional webhosting news, tips and other related information.

theWHIR.com is a great community, every member cares about web hosting and anything to do with it, each of the community can write articles about web hosting and you can gain a wealth of knowledge through these and the comments they attract.

webhostingmasters.com

This is a very professional review site, you will find a free guide here that will take you through a list of the greatest web hosting providers. All of the featured companies are individually selected, tried, and provided with a detailed review in order to help readers and webmasters identify the best hosting provider available.

You may be able to find some useful information on the sites that follow, but the following sites are not rated very highly by the industry. Indeed, certain web hosting enterprises on webhostingmasters.com are basically unknown.

It can be difficult on the web to find completely independent reviews for web hosting providers. So, make sure to take the "independent" reviews with a grain of salt and only use them as one basis for your ultimate decision.
