But do each top affiliate program is a profitable business venture? Certainly no, simply because many times people end up selling products that has no buyers' or taker's thereby -- in no revenue return. So, how can you decide on a top paying affiliate program that results in good revenue earning home based business model for you? Below are some guidelines to consider while choosing a top rated affiliate program that will result in a program that sells:

1. Whether Sign-Up is free or paid? While almost all of the web programs do not charge you money for your interest to participate but there are some top paying affiliate programs which cost you a little to sign-up. Thus, while picking to sign an affiliate to market a product or service, one should see that the sign-up doesn't cost considerably, and if possible choose a free sign-up system. At the same time, it must be seen that it does not cost you much to sell or promote the item as a possible affiliate.

2. Does the Top affiliate program give you required Advertising and marketing Tools? While selecting an affiliate program, one should check if the top rated affiliate program offers necessary marketing and advertising tools in addition to the support it provides? A top paying affiliate program will make necessary marketing tools available to you apart from the support it offers to allow you to help making the sells quickly.

3. Demand of the product or service It's not advisable to select an affiliate program where you try to promote or sell an item that's not popular or of good quality, because in that case you'll be finally advertising or selling a product which people don't want to invest in shelling out some bucks. Thus, choose the top rated affiliate program that gives good quality and in-demand products to promote or sell.

4. When is the money paid? While some top affiliate programs pay out their commission once or twice in a four weeks, there are others, that do not have a regular pay out option. So, while selecting an affiliate program you need to see that the affiliate program one decides to join has a regular pay-out of commission possibility because you would not want to finish up in a situation where you're waiting for your check to arrive for months.

5. Is there any residual earnings? Though not essential, one must explore if there's any possibility of making a residual income while deciding on top paying affiliate program. How much commission can you earn from the sale? The residual income differs from one program to another. Choose on your own whether you've precedence for some residual income as well.

Though, the above tips are not comprehensive list of tips in choosing the best top paying affiliate programs, however, one surely would be in a position to choose the best top affiliate program that would lead them to set up a profitable home based business.
