Know Your Fashion Style

There is nothing wrong with being careful about the way you dress yourself. The clothing that you put on is one of the first things that strangers notice about you. It makes a statement, whether you like it or not. You might as well be sure that you are sending the right messages.

Do you revel in being different? If you feel like you have an eccentric personality, and you dress to show how you feel, you may fall into the eccentric fashion category. These people have some serious fun with their fashions and they love to turn heads.

Fashionista types absolutely adore the idea of being noticed for their fashions. Following trends can become something akin to a workout for these people who know exactly what they should be wearing. These are often the people who sign up to have lists of current trends delivered to their email boxes.

Are you a sporty type of dresser? These people are ready for action because they are usually wearing some type of gear designed for an outdoor activity. If you always look ready for a workout or a quick jog, you are probably sporty.

Do you enjoy being different? If you like to dress with some serious flair, you might be artsy. These people have a talent for taking what was old and making it appear new again by adding their own special twists. Artsy dressers are often not afraid to don some bright colors that call attention to themselves.

People with a more relaxed outlook on life and fashion sometimes fall into the hippie clothing category. They often love the retro fashions of the 1960s and 1970s. You might even see these folks sporting bell bottom jeans that they picked up at a flea market or thrift store.

People who love preppy fashion would often fit right into a high school movie from the 1980s. Although these people look very well put together, taking on this style is something that will sometimes make you appear to be a bit of a snob to those you encounter through the day. If you are a man and you wear pink Polo shirts with the collar turned up, you might be preppy. If you carelessly tie a sweater around your shoulders, there is no doubt!

Emo fashion fans tie their fashion together with their favorite music and their overall lifestyle. Based on showing their emotions, sometimes to an extreme, this style often features tight fitting black jeans, funky splashes of color and a stereotype of being a bit dark. If you like to dress emo, you probably do so on purpose.

Fashion lovers might want to take a look at the how to dress emo website to find out more about emo trends.
