Why Have A White Cyc When You Could Utilize A White Wall?

If there's a person around you to ask a question as foolish as this, let me inform you that he has not taken a close look at all that a white cyc can be used for. A cyc or a cyclorama is a clear white background that's actually made from a really resilient and hard material. There are no creases or blotches on the cyc and hence it gets to be very easy to project the right amount and type of light to have a clear background.

The white cyc can be utilized for several shoots without being replaced. It is however important to maintain the cyc well and also guarantee that there are absolutely no rips or marks on it. In case you are not careful while storing the cyc, there are possibilities that folds and wrinkles might occur. There are many studios in Hollywood as well as other cities where the cyc is given on rent. You can use the equipment along with the services of the techs who are usually present on hand in order to provide you some valuable tips and suggestions on getting the maximum from your cyc.

Since the bottom of the white cyc is not a straight line, but one that is curved to blend with the ground, there exists a feeling of continuity that you can create in your shot. You need to be careful that the edges of the cyc aren't frayed or broken in any way. Such damage will certainly reflect badly in the image that you take. Moreover, care should be taken to make sure that the subject positioned in front of the cyc is dressed in the right kind of attire and make up.

There should be a proper blending of colors to guarantee a well lit picture. For instance, if the subject is donning a really light shade then the effect won't be so good. At the same time, an excessive amount of a contrast will also not help. Therefore, only a light and costume designer, working in tandem, can provide the very best tips to have a picture that's technically great as well as aesthetically attractive.

If you're in the movie industry and have accomplished a number of shoots using a white cyc, you'll not want to use any other identical piece of equipment. Since it is something that lends itself to your creative abilities, there isn't any reason for looking for any options that might or might not be as effective as a cyc. Be sure that you are also fully mindful of the technical issues of utilizing a cyc. If you're technically good, there is a lot of creative work that you can do. As you are your own master, you don't need to depend on some other technical hands to accomplish the job for you. Be ready and start trying out stuff using the white cyclorama in the studios now.

There are a lot other websites featuring different forms of advice on how to use green screen but many of them are not very comprehensive or precise.
