Wanting to make money online is a good start, but you do need some kind of plan to get started. Everyone has to start somewhere, and even if you have no experience there are many ways you can make money online. Here are a few basic money making methods for new internet marketers to take advantage of.

Website flipping is very popular. Simple adaptation of house flipping in the offline world of real estate. Several requirements are hosting for your site, plus a domain name for the website. Next, of course you need to have content on the site for your visitors to read when they land there. Once the site is up, give it two months to see what can of income it makes - and then sell it. Very many marketers make their incomes from this, but realize it takes hard work and the right effort to make it happen. How about an online store? You have unlimited choices from which to choose - have fun deciding! It can also feature items that you buy from wholesalers and then re-sell. The big decision with this type of internet marketing is whether or not you want to keep inventory. You'll need to find a supplier who is reliable if you're at all interested to warehouse stock. The best choice, for many reasons, is to drop-ship and not get involved with keeping stock on premises, so you'll need to find a supplier who can serve your needs the best.

Do you have experience in sales or developing profitable products? There is a great demand for good coaches and consultants to help others get started in business. Coaching or mentoring has become a popular field, as people who need help in some area will pay someone who has the right expertise. Consulting, whether online or in person, is a service that people and business pay thousands of dollars for. You can use all the skills you acquired in any previous careers and use them in your consulting business. Maybe you might choose to start a blog. It might surprise you to know that blogging can be fun and profitable. Stick to one primary topic in your posts and success will follow you. There are a number of options open to you for earning revenue through your blogs. You might choose to sell advertising. You can sell post sponsorships. You could review various products for pay. As a reviewer, you could even receive plenty of free stuff that you could keep or you could choose to sell later. You could get paid to blog about certain topics or to include links to specific sites in your posts. There are just so many ways to make money with blogging. You'll see websites that offer to you pay for certain services, and these are a newbie marketer magnet. These online businesses will pay people to take surveys, try products, fill forms, etc. Some offer to pay for clicking on links. However, you must be very careful with companies that ask for money or your personal information and be sure to check them out the best you can. There are very many honest businesses, but the net is teeming with scam artists. However, the very serious IM marketers laugh at these and never do them because they ask for tons of work and pay very little. Sell photographs. Stock photography sites are always looking for ways to expand their databases and increase their profits.

Most of the photographs on these sites are sold by amateurs. Some of these sites will pay a flat rate per image. Some sites pay you for every photo and others pay every time it is downloaded by their visitors. If you ever thought about becoming a photographer then this can be a way to get your feet wet. This is also a very effective way of marketing your photography business by circulating some of your quality work around the internet. No matter what your background or skill set, you can probably do some kind of internet marketing. There are millions of people online every day, and many of them have needs and wants that they are willing to pay for. The only requirements to get started in internet marketing is an open mind and the willingness to work for your success.
