How to Find Honest Hosting Reviews

There are thousands of web hosting companies on the internet and finding a good one can be tough. This is where web hosting review websites come in. These websites make the process of picking a web hosting company easier for you. Customers can submit their reviews and read the recommendations submitted by other clients. Unfortunately many of these websites feature fake reviews, written to promote a particular company.

Fortunately there are some places where you can find completely honest web hosting reviews written by independent customers instead of affiliates.

Hosting Forums:

There are dozens of web hosting forums where webmasters discuss server related issues. These sites can help you get honest reviews from real clients. The best thing about these sites is that they do not allow any affiliate links in their threads. Usually when a person tries to earn money by posting an affiliate link the moderators ban him within 24 hours. This keeps the discussions unbiased and healthy.

Trusted Tech Websites:

Popular technology websites frequently feature articles related to web hosting. You can trust the information given in such articles because established bloggers are well aware of the fact that one wrong piece of information can harm their credibility, and eventually their blogging career. You can also contact the blogger directly and ask him to recommend a hosting service.

Independent Reviewers

While most reviewers fill their websites with affiliate banners, some people adopt a very different money making strategy. Instead of joining affiliate programs and writing biased reviews, they earn profits by selling links and using pay-per-click programs. The reviews present on such websites are often very helpful for new webmasters. However, this business strategy is not very common.

A website can never prosper without a good host. Hosting not only affects the speed of a website but also decides its rank in Google and other popular search engines. If you follow the above mentioned tips you can find a good hosting company for yourself.
