Different Types of Web Hosting Plans.

The modern demand for the internet and the website for the growth have made the web hosting industry to grow as much as it can. Each and every website on the internet requires the web hosting. The web hosting does the job of creating a website and then hosting the website and the webpage. There are over 182 million websites and webpage now so it can be understood that how much the web hosting services are needed. Therefore there are many web hosting services available now days.

They have this service thanks to the web hosting. Before the users choose their webpage they need to hire some company which will provide the space in their server to show their website this is also called as the web hosting. There are different types of web hosting. These are free web hosting, shared hosting, VPS hosting and dedicated hosting.

The shared web hosting is mostly as it is cheap and it allows more data transfer than the free ones. This type of web hosting is preferred to medium size companies with definite amount of traffic and large database. The shared web hosting gives more space and control for the user.

Therefore it is clear that customer cannot control the website fully and the control lies with the company providing the free web hosting services. These types of hosting are best preferred for the personal website and hobby website as this type of web hosting can damage the reputation of the corporate.

The dedicated web hosting the user takes the server on rent from the service providers and use it exclusively. The server is not shared with anyone. This type of web hosting is very safe. The dedicated hosting is very costly as the user is the owner of the server. It is the most expensive among all the web hosting as it provides full access and control of the server. Many websites and webpage can be hosted and the owner can give the space for rent also.

Therefore it is necessary to know what type of web hosting is best suited to the customers and according to that bit should be chosen. The customer should find the best web hosts. The customer needs not to have just the website but also the right kind of hosting.
